

EXPECT HOUSE TO ACT FINALLY ON BEER CONTROL BILL

Organized Opposition To The Measure Apparently Submerged

PASSED ON 2ND READING

Tax of $1.24 per Barrel, and Half-Cent per Bottle Provided For HARRISBURG, May 2.—With organized opposition apparently submerged, the House was prepared to act finally today on the McClure beer control bill.

The bill passed second reading last night without a battle. Minor amendments were offered, however, necessitating the return of the measure to the Senate for concurrence.

The beer tax bill was on the Senate's second reading calendar, it was reported from the committee last night, with the tax standing at $1.24 per barrel and one-half cent per bottle. The bill passed first reading.

Action on the control bill was delayed last night in the House when it was found that copies were not on file with all members. Mumbblings that the copies had been deliberately torn from the files in order to delay second reading, could not be substantiated. Speaker Talbot passed over the bill temporarily and directed that additional copies be made immediately. This enabled second reading passage two hours later and prevented a full day's delay.

The control bill provides that wholesale and retail licenses shall be issued by county treasurers and that the fees range from $75 to $300, according to the population of the municipality. This feature, which has been the major basis of controversy, is acceptable to Governor Pinchot.

Two Pinned in Truck When Trailer Topples Over

MORRISVILLE, May 2.—Charles West, 35, and George Peterson, 27, were recovering from injuries suffered when an eight-ton trailer toppled over on the small truck in which they were riding.

Traffic was tied up on the Bristol Pike more than three hours last night before the trailer could be removed from the bridge over the Lehigh canal.

The accident occurred as the truck, driven by George VanHart, Ridge-wood, N. J., was rounding a curve.

Peterson and West were pinned in the cab of their truck when the trailer fell on top of their vehicle. Peterson suffered a fractured arm. West escaped with cuts and bruises.

State Highway Patrolman Deim of the Langhorne barracks was assigned to investigate the cause of the accident.

INJURED IN POLICE BATTLE

Lansdale, May 2.—Defying police who sought to question him, an unidentified man lies seriously wounded in Montgomery County hospital at Norristown, after a pistol duel with a policeman who arrested him near the Reading station last night. Scores of passengers in the station were endangered by the exchange of shots. Police were attempting to link the suspect with recent hold-ups in this section, and with the fatal shooting of Clarence D. Stump, a gasoline station owner, near Krumsville, last April 6th. The wounded prisoner declined to reveal his name. He was shot by Kenneth Lear, 24, a Lansdale policeman. Lear narrowly escaped being wounded when the suspect fired two shots at him after covering Harvey Rosenberger, who called police upon noticing the man acted suspiciously near the flour mill where he is employed.

RUMOR ROOSEVELT MAY VISIT LONDON

London, England, May 2.—Reports that President Roosevelt may visit London during the forthcoming World Economic conference caused great excitement in British official circles today. Although it was impossible to confirm the reports, which are denied by White House spokesmen in Washington, White House circles expressed the belief an address before the conference by President Roosevelt would greatly enhance its effort to combat the world economic crisis. It was stated that Prime Minister MacDonald, now enroute to London from Washington, where he conferred with the United States chief executive, informally suggested during their talks, that President Roosevelt come to London while the conference is in progress.

PERKASIE LAD CROWNED BUCKS CO. "MIB" KING

Kenneth Wenhold, 13, Puts Up Fine Games At Newtown

TO GO TO PHILADELPHIA

NEWTOWN, May 2.—Gathering here Saturday were marble enthusiasts who in the 1933 Bucks County marble shoot saw Kenneth Wenhold, Perkasio, crowned "mib king."

Kenneth, 13, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Wenhold. Earl Druckenmiller, chairman of North Penn Valley eliminations, was delighted with Wenhold's victory, and is grooming him for the Philadelphia metropolitan shoot during the middle of May. Wenhold with the possibility of the city victory may represent the Philadelphia area in the national championship at Ocean City the latter part of June.

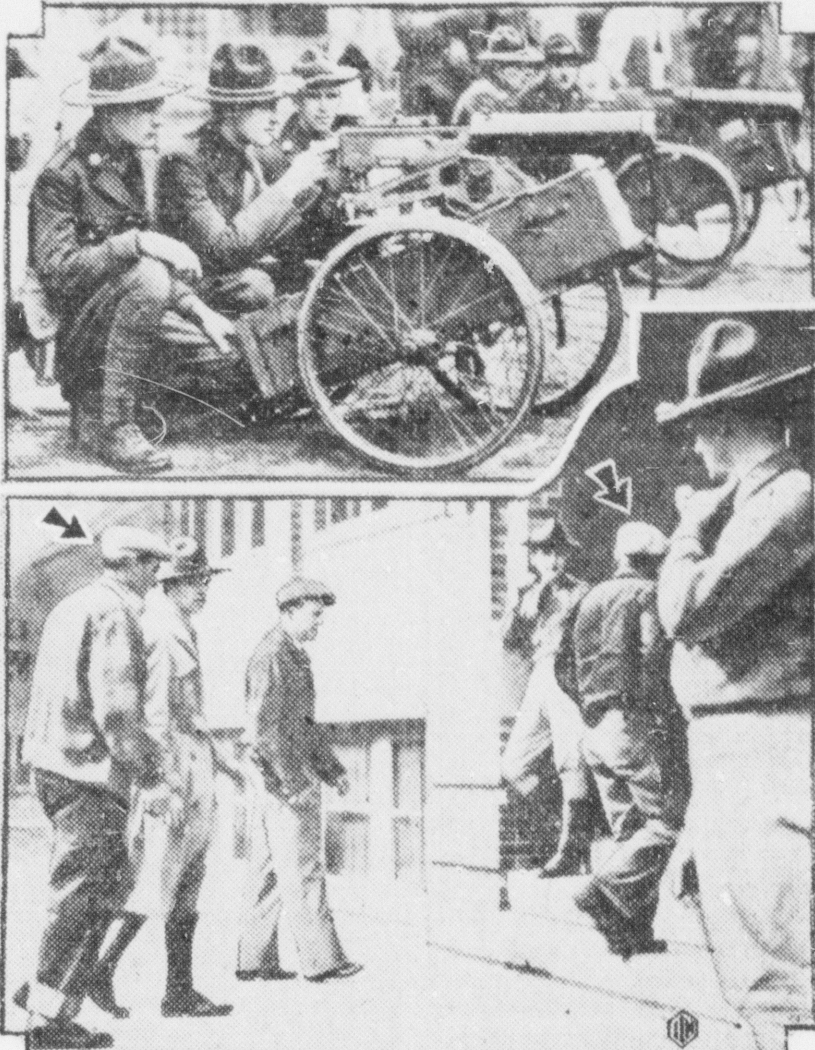

Dr. A. J. Strathie, of Newtown, as chief judge, and Scout Executive Livermore conducted the county elimination on the courts of Newtown quit club. All of the contestants ran close scores.

The other four district champions present for the "county" on Saturday were: Lower Bucks district, champion, Charles Foells, Jr., Bristol township, 13 years. Delaware Valley district champion, Mathew Biedka, of Hulmeville, 11 years. Middle Bucks district champion, John Evans, Sunnyside school near Doylestown, 12 years. West Bucks district champion, William Clark, of Richboro, 14 years.

The contestants drew for shooting, with Wenhold playing Biedka, and winning 7 to 6 and taking the second and deciding game with the same score. Clark drew Evans as his opponent, and "took him over" by runs of 9 to 4, and 8 to 5. Foells was lucky in drawing the bye. Foells then played Wenhold, winning the first game 7 to 6, and losing the next two games 9 to 4. This gave Wenhold his championship lead that could not be overcome. Clark then shot against Foells to earn the privilege of shooting out the championship with Wenhold. However, he couldn't make the grade with Foells winning 10 to 3 and 8 to 5. This victory of Foells gave him second place with Wenhold declared champion.

FORESTS MUCH IMPROVED BY WORKERS FROM CAMPS

Vacationists Will Find Such More Pleasant Than Ever

NEW TRAILS, ROADS, ETC.

(This is the third and concluding article by Edward B. Lockett describing activities in the new reforestation camps.)

By Edward B. Lockett
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(INS)—Vacationists who take to the woods when the mercury climbs into the upper brackets will find the 161,000,000 acres of national forest even more pleasant than usual this year.

New forest trails and roads, public camp improvements, and a limited amount of tree planting are only a few of the additions to the vacationer's pleasure that President Roosevelt's civilian conservation corps will bring.

In the field of safety from fires there will be new telephone lines strung, new landing fields set out for airplanes, new fire breaks, look-out towers and observatories, and range water development. Also, the reforestation army will tackle the job of insect and tree disease control, and other range and forest work.

And most of the work in the national forests will be of a type classed as an "investment" in the books of the forest service under a survey made last December.

This type of work, as explained by R. Y. Stuart, head of the forest service, consists of projects or activities for which appropriations would normally be made. It would not, normally, be brought to such speedy conclusion as is contemplated under the President's program. The reforestation army can complete in thirteen months with its quarter-million-man regiment of work, what the forest service had outlined as a program for years of work.

The work could not be classified as self-liquidating in the strictly business sense that there would be created an income sufficient to pay off the costs incurred, Stuart added. On the other hand, he continued, the value received will more than offset the cost in the long run.

Under the most recent estimates, the

STUDIO NEAR NEW HOPE ATTRACTS LARGE CROWDS

Many Articles in Collection Had Their Origin In Mexico

SOME FOUND IN AFRICA

NEW HOPE, May 2.—A new studio home along the old tow path of the Pennsylvania Canal is now the home of Mrs. Anna R. Lowenberg, artist and art collector.

Surrounded by priceless art curios from three continents, Mrs. Lowenberg enjoys them most when she can share them with others and, in the short time she has been in New Hope, has had many visitors, pupils from high school, artists and her neighboring townfolk.

For a number of years Mrs. Lowenberg has been going periodically to Mexico, not the Mexico of the tourist, but back into the real native sections, where even the old Spanish influence is little seen and the predominant note in the life is the original Indian or Aztec.

Most of her collecting of the primitive art objects of Mexico has been done in the State of Oaxaca, on the Pacific coast, near where Mexico bends around to join the Central American section. About Monte Alban she has been particularly fortunate in procuring ancient clay figures representing the Mitze, Zapotec and Aztec periods of supremacy in Mexico. These objects carry the symbols of the people, the plumed serpent, the sun and the sacred birds. A fine piece is a mask finely carved from obsidian.

Upon being invited to a hacienda party, Mrs. Lowenberg sought permission to seek for relics and was rewarded by the discovery of a fine jadeite necklace bearing symbols indicating that it had been worn by a chieftain. All of these articles are at least 1000 years old.

In her contacts with the people of Mexico she has obtained many pieces of modern handicraft of a type usually retained by the natives and not disposed of to travelers. Tiny articles representing infinite skill and patience, terra cotta pieces colored with vegetable dyes and cochineal, and native paintings are included in her collection. There are also curios from the Tarascan tribe, one that today speaks no word of Spanish.

Restrictions imposed on the Catholic churches by the Mexican Government have resulted in many of the church furnishings being disposed of and Mrs. Lowenberg has several candelabras made of baked clay, brilliantly colored. All the symbols are definitely Aztec and bear no sign that can be associated with Christianity.

Not all of her art objects are Mexican, however. Her travels have included jungle Africa, from which she has brought unique wood carvings many years old. Then there are Egyptian pieces dating back beyond Tutankhamen, Persian paintings and tapestries of the 13th century and Greek sculpture of 5th century B. C.

Many of the pieces in Mrs. Lowenberg's collections have been exhibited in museums and recently they have been on display at the University of Pennsylvania Museum in Philadelphia.

OFFICERS ARE NAMED

LANGHORNE, May 2.—In its annual report Langhorne Community Welfare Association shows that 145 families have been supplied grocery orders, and 185 coal orders.

In a recent meeting of the association it was shown that in addition to supplying the needy with groceries and fuel, families were supplied with clothing and those in need of medical or surgical treatment were given attention.

An expression of thanks was made by the president to all persons who had assisted the welfare association during the past year. Special mention was made of the excellent work of Langhorne Lions Club. William Newbold's help with the Talbot Fund. C. J. Matthews' contribution of shoes and the assistance of Miss MacNab and aids for services in the care of the sick.

Mr. Newbold reported that in the local district the State is giving assistance to 1890 families.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Sara T. Allen; vice-president, Mrs. Harry W. Williams, Jr.; treasurer, Miss Anna N. Lukens; secretary, Mrs. Harry P. Rothmel.

A costly error by Joe Britton, deprived the Jefferson A. C. of a victory in the opening game of the Bristol Twilight League last night on Sullivan's field as the Hibernians took the game, 10-8.

Britton's error came in the fourth inning with two outs. Hibernian base-runners were on third and second with no one out, when "Reds" McCurry bore down and fanned both Dougherty and Mulligan and seemed to pull out of the hole he was in when John Dougherty rolled an easy one down to second. First Britton fumbled the horsehide, and when he did pick the ball up he hurried his throw to pull Tomlinson off the bag, and two runs scored.

The "Mules" started a youngster, Maurice McCurry, on the hill and he gave a good account of himself. He allowed but six swats but errors and stolen bases paved the way to his defeat. Ennis was credited with the victory, giving up but six hits.

But Wright, with two triples to right center, was the hitting star of the game. He drove in three runs and scored one himself.

BOY OFFICIALS ARE NAMED TO MANAGE BORO' ON THURSDAY

Total of 1300 Ballots Are Cast in Day of Voting

FRANK GROW, BURGESS

Three Candidates in Sixth Ward Get One Vote Each

Boys' Week got under way with plenty of activities yesterday. There was a municipal election in charge of the committee headed by the Rev. S. Brooks Knowlton, roller skating races in charge of David Norman and marble elimination contests supervised by Robert Morris.

A total vote of about 1300 in the borough office ballots required about 1½ hours to count last evening.

The race for office of burgess was very close, especially in the first and third wards. Foster Grow headed the ticket with 667 votes in the first and third wards, and on his ticket three candidates were "put over." Grow lead in the third ward and ran "heavy" in the first. On this ticket the justice of the peace and tax collector were elected. The tax collector is Paul Straus, with Charles Capella named justice of the peace.

The second ticket of the day was headed by Horace Longstreth, who polled 450 votes, the majority of these being in the first ward. Longstreth, Milan Naylor, and Joseph Woolley, were runners-up for the positions of burgess, tax collector, and justice of the peace, respectively; but were successful in electing their candidates for council in the first ward. These are: Theodore Miko, Vincent Profy, and Thomas Profy.

In the second ward the voting was light, councilmen chosen being: Edward Napoli, Lewis Doane, and Joseph Biers. Third ward, where the voting was heavy, chose the following councilmen (burgess' candidates): Madison Seifert, Jack Ritter, and Charles Hughes.

Fourth ward councilmen are: Milan Naylor, Headley Warner, and the third seat is unfilled. Voting was light in this ward. In the fifth ward results, where voting was lightest, Oscar DiLorenzo was the only councilman named, two seats being left vacant. There were but three votes in the sixth ward, one for each of the following: Jack Fraiser, Dick Drumm, Pete Hubbs.

The boys will take office Thursday. The polling took place between the hours of nine a. m. and five p. m., yesterday, the ballot box being in the office of tax collector, Louis B. Girton, municipal building. The ballots were counted and tabulated by the board of governors of the Rotary Club, last evening, and the results announced today.

The roller skating races attracted a large crowd of spectators which gathered in groups along the course and cheered the participants on to greater effort.

The winners:
Juniors: Won by Harry Lynn, 12, fifth ward; second, Robert Lemon, 12, Edgely; third, Charles Strong, 12, sixth ward.

Seniors: won by Anthony Stallone, 16, fourth ward; second, Henry Glerum, 15, Edgely; third, Robert Moore, 14, sixth ward.

The course for the seniors extended from Green Lane to Mill and Pond streets while that covered by the juniors was from Jefferson avenue and Radcliffe street to Mill and Pond streets.

The judges were C. Russell Ellis, Frank Morgan, Dr. H. Doyle Webb, and Horace Schmidt. Superintendent of Public Safety James L. McGee acted as starter for the juniors while William Rasmussen sent the seniors into action.

There were 29 juniors and 15 seniors competing but a number failed to cover the course. Melvin Locke, Edgely, lost a skate and had to drop out. Patrick McGee suffered similar luck as did Samuel Ross.

Henry Glerum who finished second in the senior event showed particularly good form and exhibited a very good stroke.

The police arrangements were excellent. All traffic was barred from Radcliffe and Mill streets and the skaters had a clear right-of-way. At the finish line the spectators crowded about the boys as they ended their grind.

Marble elimination games were staged on the Elks' tennis courts yesterday afternoon, and 45 contestants "shot" for honors. Five rings were necessary to run off the matches. The referees were Dr. G. Austin Bisbee, Frank Voit, and Robert Morris. Each of the rings were supervised by a ward leader. The semi-finals and finals will be played this afternoon, beginning at four o'clock.

The final ball game for Boys' Week Senior Championship will be played on Sullivan's field between Croydon and sixth ward at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

On Thursday at 4 p. m., the sixth ward will engage the third ward for the Junior Championship.

PROTECT THE TREES

There is a heavy and severe penalty for damaging trees and judging by the number about town which are being defaced and put to a slow death, this penalty should be enforced.

Boys are sitting upon the high limbs and cutting the trees with hatchets and saws just for mere pastime. There are many trees in Bristol which are being ruined by boys and some effort should be made to capture the guilty culprits and to give them the full extent of the law.

There is a dire need for the public of Bristol to become tree conscious. Many fine specimens here have been ruined and others are being marred and defaced to such an extent that it is only a question of time before they die.

This damage to trees has been going on for a long time, and apparently there is only one way to stop it and that is to apprehend those guilty and prosecute them to the full extent of the law.

MODEL LAW DROPPED

Whatever can be said in behalf of marriage laws requiring health certificates from license applicants—and much can be said in their behalf—the fact remains that in practical application very little is accomplished by them.

This observation is drawn forth by the action of the North Carolina legislature in repealing what had been called a model marriage law after 12 years' experience with it. Two factors contributed to the decision to erase it and substitute a more liberal statute. One was that couples avoided its provisions by having the ceremony performed in nearby states, Virginia, South Carolina and Tennessee, all adjoining North Carolina, were available for this purpose. Another reason was the decline in revenues from license fees. Loss of the latter was felt quite heavily by some county treasurers.

Repeal of the statute had been agitated for several years but women's and welfare organizations were successful in resisting the proposal until this year when the movement became too strong to be defeated. Not only were the objectionable provisions of the marriage law eliminated, but the divorce law also was liberalized by reducing from five to two years the separation period required for institution of a divorce suit on desertion grounds.

Marriage and divorce have become important industries in the United States, for which there is sharp competition among the commonwealths. The tendency is toward easy marriage and equally easy divorce, with the danger that it may go too far in these directions. The only corrective for this situation lies in uniform marriage and divorce laws, but there is little evidence that such an objective will be soon attainable.

HOLLYWOOD.—Youth will be served by R-K-O in the adventure film the studio plans to build around the thrills of covering news with the cameras.

For "Newsreel," the name of the picture, they have signed three lively players. They are the dynamic William Gar-gan, the vital Arline Judge and the boyish Eric Linden, all three members of Hollywood's younger, energetic school of actors.

The trio will enact a story which covers all phases of drama, comedy and love behind the lenses of the newsreel men. The production will be made from an original story by Harold Shumate, adapted for the screen by Agnes Christine Johnson and Allen Rivkin. David Lewis is associate producer and Otto Brower will sit on the director's camp-chair.

To create sharp realism in "Newsreel," the studio is drawing on experiences recorded in letters from Pathe cameramen all over the world.

"MARY FAITH" by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Faith, comely young orphan, is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy business man. She gives up her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, shiftless young lawyer. Mary Faith believes that loving a man hard enough will make everything come out all right in the end. It was this confidence that enabled her to marry Kim after he had once broken their engagement. She realizes he has an eye for every girl, but hopes that married life will sober him and make him successful in his profession. Instead, Kim is annoyed at Mary Faith's "Puritanism," and his jazzy friends, Claire and Jack Maldon, find her a dull companion. Learning that she is to become a mother, Mary Faith, for the first time, visits Kim's office. Kim is furious when Mary Faith finds him flirting with his blond secretary. That night he informs his mother and Mary Faith that he is leaving. Mary Faith, heartbroken at this turn of affairs, decides not to tell Kim of her coming motherhood. She and Mrs. Farrell decide to struggle to keep the home for the coming baby. Mary Faith obtains a position as typist. She refuses to accede to Kim's request for a divorce and asks him to wait six months before carrying out his desire. As the bells are ringing in the New Year, Mary Faith's son is born. Kim, informed of this event, returns home and becomes, for a time, a proud and happy father. Kim is restored to his old position which he had lost due to money irregularities. When his salary is increased, Mary Faith tells him to buy new clothes. Mary Faith sees Kim walking with a girl from the neighborhood library. She accuses him of being a fast worker.

CHAPTER XXV

Late in August Aunt Ella came up from Garrettville to spend a week at the flat while her little niece was being painted.

"The smell of turpentine always makes me sick," she explained when she arrived. "I can smell it all the time and I can taste it in my food, seems like. So I just said to myself, Well, I ain't paid a visit to see that precious baby in a good while, and I got the noon bus, and here I am."

Mary Faith was glad to see her. She loved to hear Aunt Ella's never-ending flow of talk. Aunt Ella read the paper aloud to the family before breakfast every morning and discussed the events of the nation and the world with Kim.

"What do you think of Coolidge as a President, anyway, Kimberley?" she would ask, and then she would answer herself before he had a chance to get a word in edgewise:

"Seems to me he does a pretty good job even if he doesn't say much. There never was a President like Teddy Roosevelt, though. I heard him talk once, and my but he was full of red pepper! Jolts and volts were in every sentence that came out of his mouth—I remember that I was hoarse for three days afterward, I cheered so much."

She was filled with the quality that she called "red pepper," herself. All day long she trotted around the house, helping with the work, playing with the baby, snipping the brown leaves from the Boston ferns in the dining-room window, talking constantly.

Every afternoon she and Mrs. Farrell took the baby for a walk while Mary Faith stayed at home and put the dinner on to cook. They never started out until four or five o'clock—the part of the afternoon that Aunt Ella called "the cool of the day," and they never got home until six o'clock.

They were out of the flat on one of these jaunts of theirs one afternoon when Claire Maldon came driving up the street in her little yellow roadster.

Mary Faith saw her through the open windows of the living room and flew into her own room to powder her face and take off her checkered apron. She always felt dowdy when she was with Claire who was always dressed within an inch of her life and made up like a screen star.

This afternoon she had on a dress of coffee-colored silk with a little hat to match pulled down to her eyebrows. Her hair peeped from under it in bright metallic waves, and her lips and cheeks were bright with coral-colored salve. About her hung the scent of the lotus perfume that she used and the odor of cigarettes.

"Hello, housewife," she greeted Mary Faith, dropping into Mrs. Farrell's armchair and lighting a cigarette. "I came to ask you about taking a trip with us over Labor Day, Sandy's all for it. I saw him downtown just now when I went up to the office to get the key of the car from Jack. I thought it would be fun for the four of us to drive down to Cambridge Springs."

Mary Faith looked at her thoughtfully. If she and Kim went it would mean spending twenty-five or thirty dollars that they couldn't afford to spend that way. It would mean leaving the baby for two or three days.

"I'm sorry, Claire," she said. "But I don't see how Kim and I can get away. We've never left the baby—and I'd be miserable wondering if he were covered at night; and besides it would cost a lot of money."

"Mary Faith, you're a little fool!" Claire's bright sharp voice cut across her sentences like a knife. "You don't think you're making Sandy happy by pinching pennies and staying at home three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, do you? You're a nice girl, Mary Faith, but you know less about men than anybody I ever saw in my life. Now, you take Sandy—what he likes is plenty of zippo going on around him all the time. If you were smart you'd get him away from the baby and those two old girls once in a while."

Her china-blue eyes were on Mrs. Farrell and Aunt Ella, who were coming along the sidewalk wheeling the baby's little cart.

In the mellow afternoon light that came slanting in through the high windows she looked haggard in spite of her paint and her powder and the black oil that glistened on her eyelashes. Studying her face, Mary Faith could see where there would be lines and wrinkles in it in another ten years or so. Her constant hunt for happiness—that shy and quiet thing—in places where it never could be found in a thousand years seemed to have worn her out. Late hours and cigarettes and the things she drank had all left their mark on her, too. At twenty-four she looked thirty-four. At thirty she would look fifty if she kept on as she was going. And at fifty she would be wearing the clothes and aping the mannerisms of the glamorous twenties, no doubt.

"She's wrong about Kim, too," thought Mary Faith as she watched her stop beside the baby's little cart and hold out a gloved finger to him and smile at him. Kim seemed to be perfectly contented these days, with her and his baby and his home.

But just to make sure she spoke to Kim about the trip that night when the two of them were setting out for the movies.

"Claire stopped in this afternoon," she began, "and told me that you and she had been talking over a trip in the car."

"Now, we didn't talk it over at all!" Kim interrupted. "She came down to the office this afternoon to talk over an entirely different matter with me—and just as she was going she suggested that the four of us go to Cambridge Springs for a couple of days. I said I'd speak to you about it."

"But you didn't."

"I forgot about it. And anyhow I'm not so keen about going with them. They've been scrapping a lot lately, and I hate to be in one of these husband-and-wife quarrels, don't you?—I stopped in at the flat the other night on the way home from the office—I felt like having a drink—and they were right in the middle of the tenth round! Believe me, I got out in a hurry!"

That was on Thursday night.

On Saturday Kim came home sick from the office. He had a sore throat and a fever. His hands were dry and hot and his gray eyes glittered under half-shut lids.

Two minutes after he walked into the house his mother was on the telephone, asking Dr. Thatcher to come right over.

"I don't need him, Mother," Kim called to her but she pretended not to hear him. She went into her own room and powdered her face and put on a clean house dress before she appeared in the sick-room where Kim lay in bed.

She ambled around the room, doing unnecessary things—lowering a window shade and then raising it again, shaking up the fresh smooth pillows of the bed, disturbing Kim in order to do it.

The Comforts of the American Home

IT IS a well-known fact that, home for home, the American household has more comforts and conveniences than that of any other nation.

In foreign lands the modernized dwelling is found only in the better sections of the larger cities.

In America, even in remote rural districts, you find the radio, the vacuum cleaner, washing machines, up-to-date heating systems, telephones and numberless labor-saving appliances.

There is a well-kept look about residence, store or outbuildings with an atmosphere of prosperity and content.

PIQUE LEADS NEW STYLE FOR SPRING; LINEN ALSO POPULAR

ever, when a low-backed evening gown in broad black and white striped China is made to adapt itself to afternoon gala functions by an additional touch in one of these smart affairs worn with a janty short-brimmed sailor or to match the pique.

This type of jacket is specially confined to white pique. Others in wool vary from the ordinary sac line to an entirely new species which sways at the back in a semi-cape movement, while fronts remain perfectly flat.

Pique also provides embroidered tuniclet cuffs and collars for dark wool frocks, jackets and blouses made at short bolero lengths buttoning on to mother-of-pearl buttons on dark skirts. Flat round collars of the pique usually appear on hip-length jackets to match cuffs. Pale blue pique forms a swathed belt and low-die tie on plain black silk frock.

Glazed linen blouses are smart again when worn with dark skirts of navy-blue and white checked tailored blouses. Mirande uses this checked fabric in black and white for a three-quarter length overcoat made on slack lines over a plain red linen frock designed like a side wrap-over coat. The dress has white petal pique trim round a short decollete and short sleeves. Plain white linen glaze is almost as popular as the pique for blouses and jacket trimmings.

CORNWELLS IS DOWNED BY BETHAYRES, 20-17

(By H. States)

In a free hitting game, a strong Bethayres team downed the locals by a score of 20-17. The game was one of those long drawn-out affairs. Thirty-seven blows were delivered by both sides, 17 of which went for extra bases. The Cornwells twirlers were very wild and allowed 15 men to reach first because of it.

For Cornwells, F. Bowman led at bat with a double, home run, and two walks. A. Bowman also hit a long homer. G. Flack starred for the visitors, connecting for a homer, a double and two singles.

Next week Cornwells plays the Colored Giants of Langhorne.

One of the peculiarities of the shooting was the taking of the last or "lucky thirteenth" marble. It seemed to be a jinx that left the game undecided until it was finally shot from the ring. Time after time the different competitors would shoot, and miss. Several times a glance shot would ease it towards the line, and even then it seemed to lead a "charmed life." Most of the shooting was accurate, but did not have the driving force that is going to be necessary if the Philadelphia Metropolitan Title is going to come to Bucks for 1933. "Winnie" Hofmeister, the former Metropolitan Champ, who comes from Newtown, and twice won the city victory, was on hand Saturday to give the contenders an encouraging word.

The championship title games proved to be the ones between Wenhold, and Foells. Wenhold won the first lag followed by each taking one marble. Foells was able to stick in the center and made a run of three. His luck was duplicated by Wenhold who also stuck, and came through with two. Both of the shooters had an opportunity to "clean up" but overshoot driving themselves from the center. A number of shots, and taking marbles followed with both becoming six even. Several misses took place over getting the "lucky thirteenth." By a hard driving shot Foells took the last, and winning marble for the first game. Foells was over-confident in the second game. He won the lag but the steady shooting Wenhold gave turned the lead of Fo-ells into a one-up on games through Wenhold winning 9 to 4. The third, and final game was exciting though lacking in driving shots. Both boys knew the possibility of "County Champ" hinged on the winner of the third, and final game. Foells became too careful, and did not drive as hard as he did in the other games. Wenhold steadily took marbles, coming through with the deciding game 9 to 4.

Langhorne Welfare Ass'n. Has A Report

The following statistics were submitted by the relief committee; grocery orders to 145 families; coal orders, 185; milk, 35 clients; medicine, 43 patients; bus fare, one patient; railroad fare, two patients; ambulance, one patient; surgical belts, two patients; seeds, 17 families; fertilizer, four families; bedding, 12 families; dental care, three patients; stoves, 2 families; Christmas baskets and toys, 55 families.

Forty-three adults and 140 children were provided with shoes, and clothing was given 140 adults and 222 children. Mrs. Mather made 55 welfare visits, M. L. MacNab, 400 and there were 118 consultations.

Visits on the part of the nurses were classified as follows: nursing, 1640; baby welfare, 119; family welfare, 573. The following is a list of the food canned by the clients: vegetables, 1245 quarts; soup, 31 quarts; fruit, 503 quarts; pickles, 284 quarts; sour kroun, 10 gallons; dried beans and corn, 58½ pounds; jelly, 578 glasses. Miss Anna N. Lukens gave the treasurer's annual report, showing an expenditure of $3367.12. Christmas baskets were distributed to 55 families, with an expenditure of $115.70.

Mrs. Harry Williams, Jr., spoke of "Our Work and Needs." She suggested an organized drive, thrift or community gardens, and the "energy" dollar. Mr. Newbold brought to notice the fact that Bucks county distributed its emergency funds voluntarily, receiving no financial aid from the State for current expenses.

reforestation forces will do work estimated in December to cost $149,935.034 normally, for $81,250,000, or a little more than half the original cost estimate. Further this will be accomplished in less than one fifth the time it would take the regular forest service to do the work.

The job tackled by the new army of labor is no small one. The December estimate of the forest service revealed that there were 1,314,957 man-months of work to be done if the program was completed. A man-month was figured as the amount of work one man could perform, working 25 eight hour days.

The estimate showed that of the total of 216,326 man-months of work, more than half, 182,876, embraced the so-called "investment" type of work, and that 133,450 was classed as of low present priority. Explaining this type, Stuart said:

"This includes work of the same type as the 'investment' labor, but of such low present priority as to bar its inclusion therein, and also work in erosion control, poison plant and rodent eradication and other types of range and forest cultural activities as would improve the national forest, properties or their facilities. However, since they are not of high value at the present time from a land use point of view, the forest service would be unwilling normally to assume their cost as a charge against capital investment."

Estimate 75 Killed In Tornado Stricken Area

SHREVEPORT, La., May 2—(INS)—Relief workers in the tornado-stricken areas of northern Louisiana and Arkansas today estimated that at least 75 persons were killed and several hundred injured by the twisters which struck late yesterday.

In the parish seat of Minden, La., the death toll was estimated at 61, most of whom were negroes. Fire broke out in Minden after the tornado cut a swath of destruction more than half a mile wide through the community.

Roaring westward 25 miles, the tornado then struck Arcadia, killing four persons. Five others were killed at Magnolia, Ark. Many residents of both towns were injured by falling debris. From Koshkonong, Mo., came reports that the storm had killed three persons near Salem, Ark., as it spread a trail of destruction near the Missouri-Arkansas state line.

The shrieking winds tore down lines of communication in nearly every area visited by the tornado. Heavy precipitation flooded the roads until they were seas of mud.

The tornado first descended upon Camp, Ark., roaring across that town in the form of a black funnel-shaped cloud. One was killed in Camp and eleven were injured.

CHICAGO, May 2—(INS)—Four persons were dead and scores were suffering from injuries today in the wake of a tornado which swept central and northern Illinois and terminated in Chicago's western suburbs. Property damage was estimated to be in excess of $500,000.

Frank Recenda, 47, was killed here at the height of the storm when the gale shattered a window which he was trying to close and drove a splinter of glass through his throat.

At Maple Mills, Ill., the tornado carried a woman a half a mile, killing both her and her son after wrecking several buildings. Near Oakford, 8-year-old Kenneth Eilers was hurled into a swollen stream and drowned. The town of Maple Mills was practically destroyed.

FOR steadiness in playing ability and for dependability in smacking them out when they're needed the most, give us Lou Gehrig, veteran first baseman of the Yankees and a truly great ball player.

Gehrig is off to a good start this year—his ninth year with the Yankees. He was a late holdout, but none doubted that he would be on hand well before the season started; and of course the salary differences were adjusted—it isn't known exactly on what basis.

While Gehrig has always batted well and has figured prominently in every winning sweep the Yankees have made, he has never led the American League in slugging. This year it is believed that he is out to do that.

He has another record to pass this year, and there is little doubt that he'll accomplish it. It appears that Deacon Scott's long-standing record of 1,307 successive games will be wiped off by Gehrig. If Lou is out there in the 154 games carded for the Yankees, he will have 1,351 games to his credit.

The batting combination of Ruth and Gehrig will surely go down as one of the greatest combinations in baseball—as great as either the Cobb-Crawford combination or the Speaker-Lewis hookup.

Looking back over the records, we see that every victorious campaign of the Yankees in various world series has been led by Ruth and Gehrig. In 1927, when the Yankees made a clean sweep of the series with the Pirates; in 1928, when the Cardinals were defeated, and last year, when the Cubs were swept away, it was the Ruth-Gehrig pair that did the business.

Gehrig is a New Yorker through and through. He was brought up in the big city, and it was at Columbia University that he was discovered by the Yankee scouts. He joined the club as soon as he was out of college, and went to Hartford in 1923. Next year he reported at camp to Miller Huggins, and the next year he took Pipp's job. Since then he has never missed a day at the initial sack.

The great Lou has a host of friends throughout baseball fandom, and he is almost a god in his home town.

"RING AROUND THE ROSEY"

Whenever people get together, there are many suggestions offered to make conditions better. Every-one seems to have some pet scheme, which will cure everything overnight.

There is one thing, so simple in application, that most of us overlook it, something we all do every week . . . go to the store, for groceries, drugs and a hundred and one different things. Now, if your store-keeper will buy what he sells you, from someone you work for, or someone that indirectly benefits you as a customer, he is making it possible for you to continue buying. The old "Ring Around the Rosey" idea.

Your HOME TOWN LEAGUE store-keeper is looking carefully over every item he stocks, so that when it is placed on the counter before you the store-keeper can say to himself . . . "Well, not only am I giving this customer a good product, but some of the money he pays me will find its way back to this town, because some of the town's people work in the plant that manufactures the product, others get paid for distributing it (railroad employees, trucking concerns, etc.), or money will be spent to advertise in the BRISTOL COURIER."

Patronize your HOME TOWN LEAGUE stores, look for the red and blue emblem on the windows.
